To replace Section 2(a) on page 14 of the 2002 Constitution.

Referenda

Sec. 2(a) A referendum on any organization question, including constitutional amendments, may be initiated by the General Executive Board, by the General Assembly, or by a petition of 5% of members not in bad standing. The number of members at the beginning of each calendar year will be used for the entire year in determining the total membership.

Referenda

Sec. 2(a) A referendum on any organization question, including constitutional amendments, may be initiated by the General Executive Board, by the General Assembly, or by a petition of 5% of members not in bad standing. The number of members at the beginning of each calendar year will be used for the entire year in determining the total membership.

Referenda

Sec. 2(a) A referendum on any organization question, including constitutional amendments, may be initiated by the General Executive Board, by the General Assembly, or by a petition of 5% of members not in bad standing. The number of members at the beginning of each calendar year will be used for the entire year in determining the total membership.

Referenda

Sec. 2(a) A referendum on any organization question, including constitutional amendments, may be initiated by the General Executive Board, by the General Assembly, or by a petition of 5% of members not in bad standing. The number of members at the beginning of each calendar year will be used for the entire year in determining the total membership.

Referenda

Sec. 2(a) A referendum on any organization question, including constitutional amendments, may be initiated by the General Executive Board, by the General Assembly, or by a petition of 5% of members not in bad standing. The number of members at the beginning of each calendar year will be used for the entire year in determining the total membership.

Referenda

Sec. 2(a) A referendum on any organization question, including constitutional amendments, may be initiated by the General Executive Board, by the General Assembly, or by a petition of 5% of members not in bad standing. The number of members at the beginning of each calendar year will be used for the entire year in determining the total membership.

Referenda

Sec. 2(a) A referendum on any organization question, including constitutional amendments, may be initiated by the General Executive Board, by the General Assembly, or by a petition of 5% of members not in bad standing. The number of members at the beginning of each calendar year will be used for the entire year in determining the total membership.

Referenda

Sec. 2(a) A referendum on any organization question, including constitutional amendments, may be initiated by the General Executive Board, by the General Assembly, or by a petition of 5% of members not in bad standing. The number of members at the beginning of each calendar year will be used for the entire year in determining the total membership.

Referenda

Sec. 2(a) A referendum on any organization question, including constitutional amendments, may be initiated by the General Executive Board, by the General Assembly, or by a petition of 5% of members not in bad standing. The number of members at the beginning of each calendar year will be used for the entire year in determining the total membership.

Referenda

Sec. 2(a) A referendum on any organization question, including constitutional amendments, may be initiated by the General Executive Board, by the General Assembly, or by a petition of 5% of members not in bad standing. The number of members at the beginning of each calendar year will be used for the entire year in determining the total membership.

Referenda

Sec. 2(a) A referendum on any organization question, including constitutional amendments, may be initiated by the General Executive Board, by the General Assembly, or by a petition of 5% of members not in bad standing. The number of members at the beginning of each calendar year will be used for the entire year in determining the total membership.

Referenda

Sec. 2(a) A referendum on any organization question, including constitutional amendments, may be initiated by the General Executive Board, by the General Assembly, or by a petition of 5% of members not in bad standing. The number of members at the beginning of each calendar year will be used for the entire year in determining the total membership.

To replace text on bottom of cover page

As Amended Through January 1, 2004

As Amended Through January 1, 2004